"I'm afraid these two high voltage wires are . . . YIII!"

Thirteen reasons district football foes were hurting.

Above: A scene from Marshall's THE WHINE SELLERS. Left: History comes easy under Mr. Lawson. Below: The courses are made more interesting by pertinent outside materials.

An example of organized confusion in the COLUMBIAN room.

How is information relayed from source to destination? How are one person's ideas expressed to another? How are misunderstandings and their consequences overtaken? What is the basis for cooperation and harmony that are essential to the effectiveness and efficiency of any organization? Communication is the answer to all of these questions.

Man is a social animal. How often have we heard that? It means that man must constantly coordinate his activities with those of society in order to survive. Outcasts do get along, but their lives are much more difficult. The idea is to use the mass for the good of the individual and vice-versa. This is the ideal concept behind a democratic society. This concept does not work well, however if the mass is ignorant to the needs of the individual. It does not work with many isolated factions working to solve their own problems but hampering each other as they do so.

It does not work well when individuals and small groups draw conclusions and form prejudices from insufficient or distorted information. These are the reasons man has worked so hard and devoted so much of his energies to improve his ability to communicate effectively.

The Junior class begins constructing its Homecoming Masterpiece.

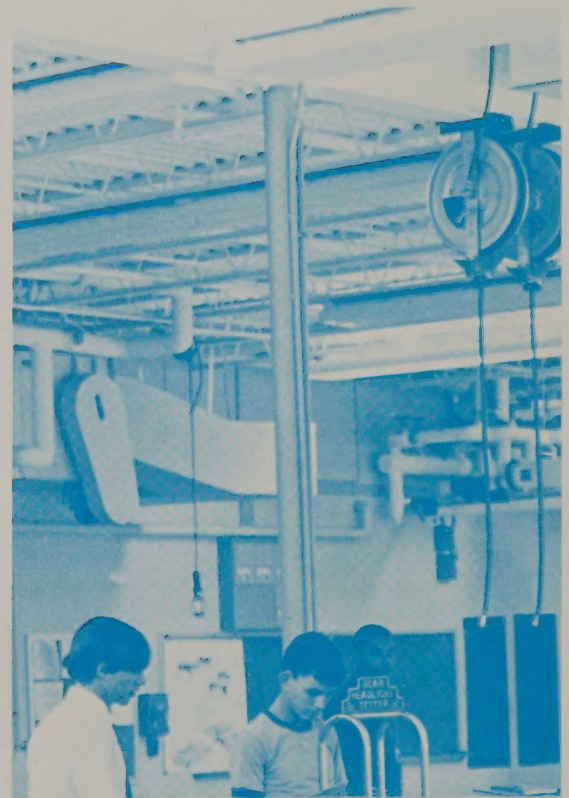

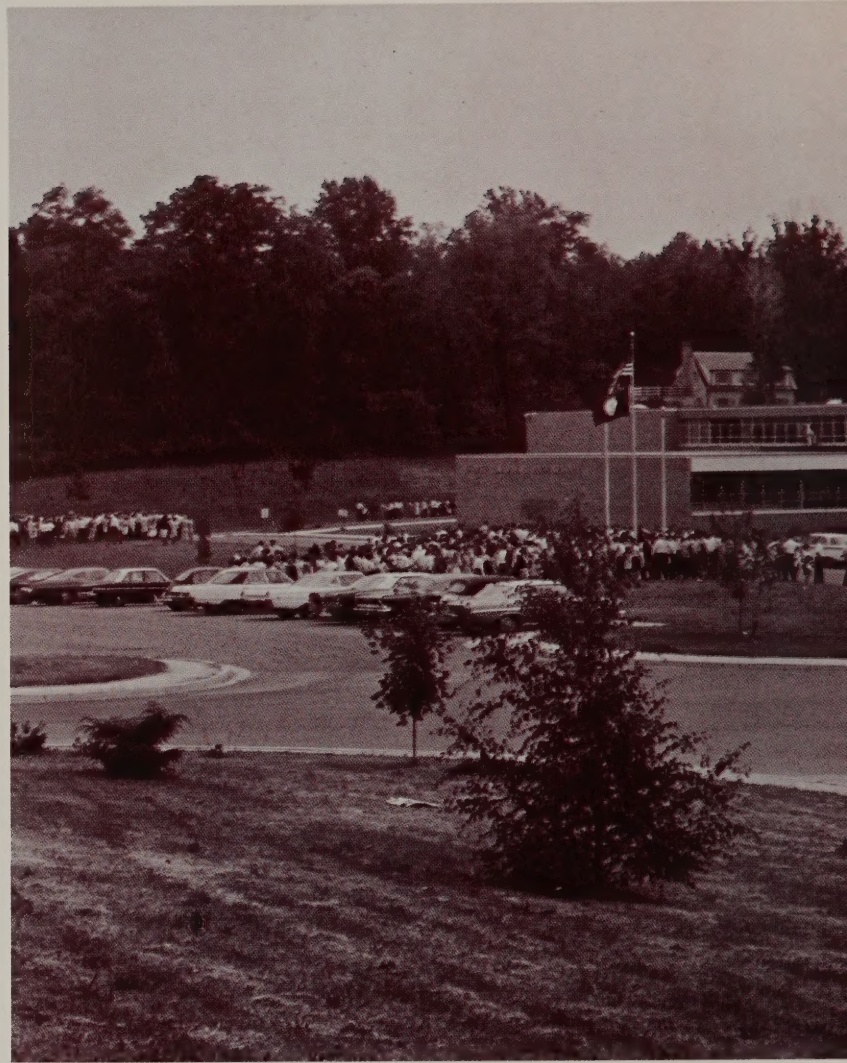

"Hard work never hurt anybody but John Henry," thinks Linda Thompson.

Most of the worlds ever increasing problems might never have come into existence had adequate understanding existed between those involved. Complete and perfect communication is an impossibility for this planet at present. Yet the closer we come to it, the closer we will be to the extinction of needless fears, blind prejudices, misunderstandings and pure ignorance, that plague our lives.

George Marshall High School has recognized that it, like any well organized system, must maintain a high level of communication. The faculty must make their supreme goal to deliver their lessons to their students with as little distortion as possible. This always depends upon how well the teacher is able to communicate with his students.

The Statesmen's fine football season was enhanced by spectacular halftimes.

Above: Bobby Haller expresses himself to Vernon Edwards. Below: "If you don't believe the Seniors are great, just ask me."

The students in turn are responsible for making it clear to the teachers where their weak points are and more emphasis is needed. This takes the form of class participation, homework assignments, tests and quizzes. The student is informed of school functions over the personal address system each morning. They are constantly informing each other of trivia, gossip, and forgotten homework assignments between classes, during lunch, before and after school, and sometimes to the teachers annoyance, during class. Marshall's S.C.A. serves to provide a ready means of communication between students of all classes and the administration. The Interclub Council, new as of this year, makes it possible for all of the school's clubs and organizations to coordinate their activities and put their meetings on a less conflicting schedule. Mr. Anderson pointed out early in the year that communication also takes the form of record turn-outs for athletic events and outstanding effort by the participating teams.

Students were able, for the first time, to really express their political views in a Marshall mock election. With members of the Debate Team taking on the roles of the leading candidates of 1968 Presidential campaign. Students actually heard speeches, registered and voted. The result was amazingly similar to that of the national election.

Mr. Broadus got the communication theme off to a big start this year with several assemblies in which he emphasized the necessity for talking things over instead of harboring suppressed resentments. "We can't read your mind," he said, "and it's up to the students of George C. Marshall to help the administration to help them."

ACADEMICS

The George C. Marshall Administration stressed the added need for improved student-staff communication, not only in the field of student government but also in the every day contact in the classes, halls and cafeteria.

Mr. Broaddus and his staff emphasized the new direction in administration-faculty-pupil relationship. His messages to the student body through the school newspaper and assemblies have encouraged us to grow up and accept responsibilities that all young adults take on.

One of the most liberal administrations in Northern Virginia led to approval of the George C. Marshall free school, the first project of its kind in the area. The after school discussion groups, dealing with topics ranging from jazz appreciation to human emotional relationships, attracted a number of interested students.

With the fine examples of understanding and liberalism set forth by Mr. Broaddus and his assistants, we all can learn the lesson of "giving the other person a chance."

To meet the challenges of teaching every Statesman for four years, the ENGLISH DEPARTMENT offers a wide range of courses in all areas of communication. In addition to traditional English courses, which emphasize literature, composition and language, a student may elect journalism, world civilization, public speaking, creative writing or drama. This year George Marshall's largest department expanded it's senior elective program to include offerings for both career and college bound students. This program, which can be opted in place of the traditional literature, features a required eighteen week course of advanced or contemporary literature and practical English for career bound students.

The COUNSELING program at Marshall helps students know themselves and their environment; to meet their academic, social and personal problems intelligently; and to adjust themselves meaningfully to their fellow man. We believe that counsel is best given within the context of knowledge of the whole person, and for this reason students are assigned to counselors to enable a student and his counselor to become well acquainted. Personal problems are approached on an individual basis as well as through group interaction.

We are fortunate at Marshall to have such a highly trained counseling staff. More importantly, our counselors have a genuine respect and real concern for all of their students.

Pronunciation, memorization, and manipulation have been the key words for FOREIGN LANGUAGE classes this year. The aim has been to make language practical. The students have been reciting, speaking, conversing and discussing in the foreign language as well as learning to read for meaning and enjoyment.

The Latin students also have practiced oral reading and pronunciation with tapes covering everything from mythology to Caesar's Gallic war Ciceros cratims. Based on a study of Roman culture this facet of Marshall's language department demonstrates that Latin is not so out of date after all.

SOCIAL STUDIES is an exciting field, continuously exploding with new facets to explore. The chief aims of the social studies faculty is to sensitize students to their environment, and to bring about learning through thinking. Social Studies is not simply a volume of facts about the past, but is a pyramiding of new ideas.

One new attempt at this critical thinking is a two-year integrated U.S. History and Government program beginning in the eleventh grade. This combined program emphasizes the development of skills and attitudes and the acquisition of knowledge. Social Studies dramatizes the complexity of the forces affecting human beings. Thus George C. Marshall's Social Studies program works at emphasizing the fundamental importance while it endeavors to adapt to change.

The SCIENCE DEPARTMENT of George C. Marshall offers the student the challenge of searching for and finding the answers to the complex technological nature of our world. From the studies of basic science to the advanced Physics courses, the Science Department covers a vast range of interest areas including Biology, Earth Science, Chemistry and new concepts such as the Time, Space, and Matter course.

As students learn to go beyond the superficial answers, using improved lab techniques and problem solving skills to delve into that which is not apparent, they realize the lesson which will help them through their lives.

THE ART DEPARTMENT this year stressed interest in a more varied selection of expressive mediums, with sculpture receiving special emphasis on all grade levels.

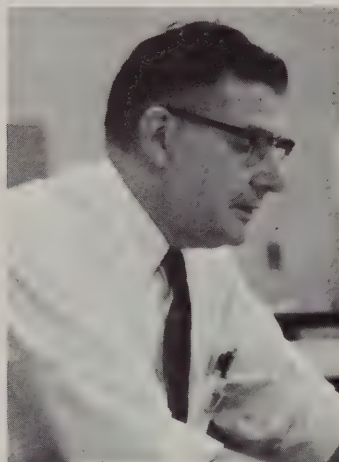

The front lobby was decorated during the year by some of Marshall's more artistically inclined students, with the painted windows for Christmas being especially appreciated by the students and staff for improving the looks of the lobby and enhancing the holiday season. Upper-class interest in art was shown in the addition of another Senior Art class.

Drafting, Electronics, and General Shop are the three main areas in courses offered by the INDUSTRIAL ARTS department at GCM. Drafting courses include Basic Technical Engineering and Architectural Drawing. Three levels in General Shop are offered with experience in drawing, metalwork, electroplating, machine and work shop available to interested students. Electronics ranges from basic concepts and laws of electricity to the advanced A.M. and F.M. radio oriented classes. The Industrial Arts department serves as a base to prepare students for further training in the various other industrial areas.

The HOME ECONOMICS program is a combined academic and skill program designed to help students develop abilities and understanding needed for home and family living now and in the future. The curriculum produces background for both the college bound students who desire to prepare for a home economics profession and for students who will marry or get a job soon after high school. Our program includes many phases of home and family living such as Foods and Nutrition, Clothing and Textiles, Home Management, Housing and Home Furnishings, Family Relations and Child Development. The Home Economics Department sponsors two clubs. They are: The Future Homemakers of America and the Breakfast Club.

The MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT of George C. Marshall High School aims to offer to each student all of the mathematics he needs to pursue his future goals, whatever they may be.

The programs range from General Mathematics to Advanced Placement. The wide curriculum makes it clear that no matter what his potential, a student can more than meet the necessary diploma requirements in mathematics, and usually elects to do so, as evidenced by the high percentage of students in elective mathematics courses.

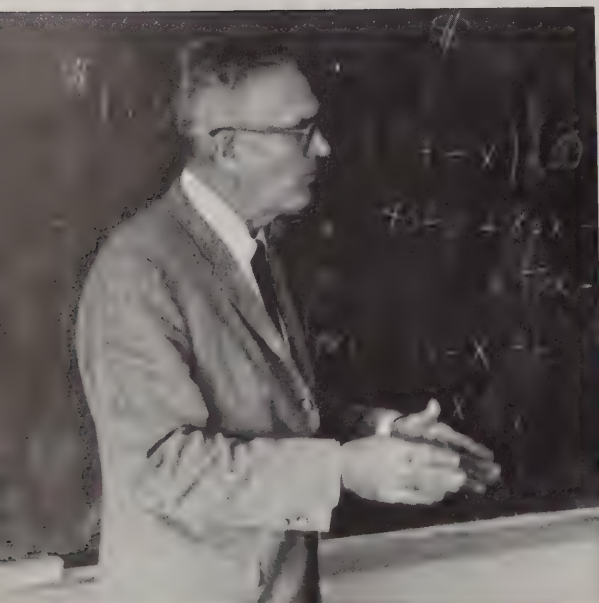

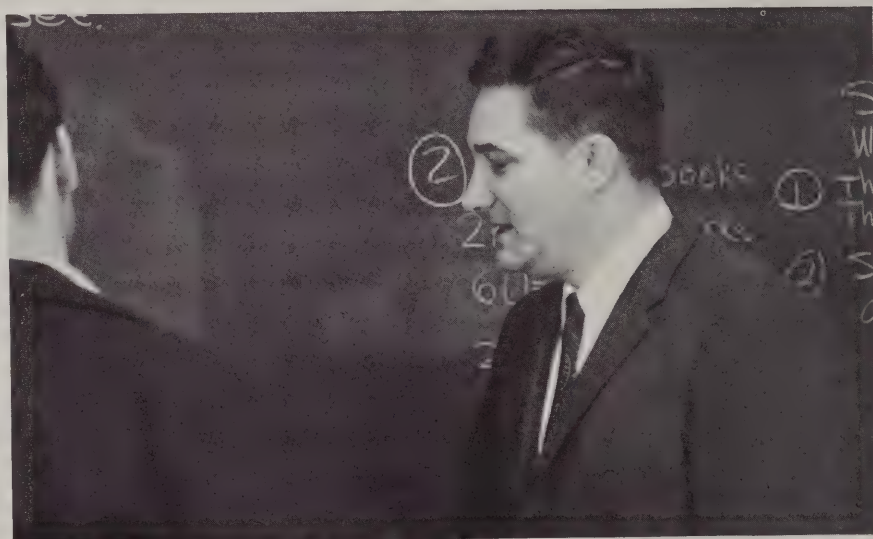

This year one of our instructors, Mr. Antone Gallaher, is testing a new course: Introductory Computer Programming, with some gifted students during the first semester, and with some general mathematics students during the second semester. Also, during the final twelve weeks of school, we will have a small computer and associated calculators here at Marshall as part of a county-wide pilot program to determine the place of computers in the high schools. It is hoped that the above-mentioned test programs will be successful and will provide more complete and continuous work with computers in the future.

While the primary aim of the BUSINESS EDUCATION Department is to equip those students who want to find a job immediately after high school with the necessary skills to do so, business subjects may be elected by any student. Courses are offered in shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, recordkeeping, business law, data processing, and general business. Typing is the most popular subject, as more and more students find it almost a necessity in order to turn out all the reports and papers they have to prepare, and college bound students find it a useful skill in finding part-time employment.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION is training for initial employment in specialized trades and technical occupations. Preparation of students in vocational fields now, is a wise investment in the future. Business and industry can no longer absorb great numbers of unskilled workers. Our nation will need four million new skilled workers by 1975. The trade, technical and industrial students of today are intended to fill these anticipated demands, thus providing for continued economic growth. In addition, the Marshall Vocational Department accepts the challenge and goes beyond skill development, striving to develop traits of leadership, personal integrity, and citizenship responsibilities which will help the student take his place as a productive member of society. Training is offered in the following areas: Auto Body Repair, Auto Mechanics, Barbering, Brick-laying, Cosmetology, Drafting, Electronics, and Maintenance and Repair.

CLASSES

Jean Peterson, treasurer, wonders how she can embezzle funds from the Senior Class treasury.

The Class of 1969

shall never forget their final year at Marshall. Under new leadership after two years, our class led the way in spirit and unity, setting glowing examples for the rest of the student body. From our first soc-hop to graduation night, the Senior Class retained the vitality, imagination, and awareness that made us one of the most colorful classes in Marshall High School's history. Our Homecoming theme, "The Song of Beowulf" set the pace for the year as we strived to out-do former graduating classes. Improved cut card privileges and the responsibility that came with them were signs of our growing maturity as we prepared to search out the horizons of the adult world.

Our class officers did an outstanding job co-ordinating senior activities and initiating new concepts in intra-class communication. Their efforts led to the great amount of individualism generated in the Class of '69. This is the way it should be, because we face society not as a mass, but as individuals, ready to accept the concepts.

Class of '70

Our three years at Marshall have been both enjoyable and satisfying. Completing this year with the Prom, our final goal was fulfilled. Once again, we took first place with our Homecoming Float, "Mop Up the Cougars", The Junior Class Variety Show also proved to be a great success. Three years of soc-hops, bake sales, dues drives, work and new ideas have culminated in this year's Prom. With the successful completion of all our goals we now look forward to an outstanding and colorful Senior year.

Class of '71

As the Sophomore Class of George C. Marshall we have produced a year of work, fun, and success. Along with our Homecoming Float, "Up With Statesmen", and our Sweetheart Dance, class spirit was demonstrated with bake sales and an enthusiastic cheering section. We now anxiously await our year as Juniors and hope that it will be as successful as the one we have just completed.

Class of '72

The Class of '72, Marshall's Freshmen class, began with bewilderment that soon developed into understanding. Despite numerous jibes from upperclassmen, we linked class organization and spirit. Electing officers, building our Homecoming Float, sponsoring bake sales and a dues drive promoted our willingness to become an active part of G.C.M. With these experiences behind us, we now look forward to a successful Sophomore year.

The 1968-69 VARSITY CHEERLEADERS were the hardest working girls Marshall has ever seen. Aside from selling Beat signs and leading cheers at all the games, the girls kept Marshall's spirit high all year long. ACTIVITIES

Sue Spiece and Jack Flynn

THE STUDENT CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION of George C. Marshall High School was the scene of heated debate during much of the year as unprecedented student interest was shown in SCA-sponsored activities. Marshall's first mock election exemplified the degree of enthusiasm for new and bold projects initiated by individual students and carried out with SCA sponsorship. Extended examination of issues on the floor of the House of Representatives led to further knowledge of issues within the student body. The SCA-sponsored Christmas Dance stressed the co-operation of all classes in order to make a project a success. While not a true student government, the SCA serves as a medium for administration-student contact, co-ordinates extra-curricular activities through the Inter Club Council, and encourages group participation in school leadership programs.

Hours of making flowers and constructing background scenery created the gay atmosphere of the colorful city of New Orleans for the 1968 Junior-Senior Prom. To vary the mood, Susie Schulz, Prom chairman, incorporated versatile settings of New Orleans at night.

The lobby entrance was transformed into a grass carpeted garden with a stepping stone pathway leading past a fountain and goldfish pool surrounded by delicately scented flowers.

A realistic Bourbon Street scene lined one cafeteria wall while another wall exhibited a showboat floating past the wharf.

French and Southern delicacies were served by waitresses in in the French style, brick-walled, basement cafe.

Old-fashioned street lamps and soft blue lights dimly lit the dance floor, where music was provided by T.N.T. and the Soul Syndicate and The Embraceables, and also a jazz trio of Marshall students.

The queen and her court were presented on the terrace scene of a Southern mansion which reflected the wrought iron collonades found in New Orleans' French Quarter.

The evening will always remain a pleasant memory especially for the Class of 1969 whose imagination and hard work provided the Class of 1968 with a beautiful Prom.

As our major service organizations, the Key and Keyette Clubs of GCM assist in school functions and community programs. Areas of mutual concern were sponsorship of Traffic Safety Week, aiding the Potomac TB and Respiratory Disease Association, and a multitude of other charitable programs. The clubs co-sponsored the annual Sadie Hawkins Dance. Keyette activities include Daisy Day and work on their national project, help to migrant workers. Key clubbers assisted at Marshall by parking cars at major functions. Both clubs carry the name of Marshall High into the community with pride and distinction.

Nervous contestants calm themselves before preliminary judging.

"To create, maintain, and extend throughout home, school, and community, high standards of Christian character."

The George C. Marshall chapter of the Tri-Hi-Y was formed in September of 1967. It has sponsored many activities in the two years of its existence. It has created the tradition of Homecoming pins and Victory chains. Its members serve as teacher assistants and participate in community and school services. The greatest achievement of the Tri-Hi-Y is the presentation of the Miss Marshall Pageant. The Tri-Hi-Y is a girls' service club now consisting of forty members who are proud to serve through the Tri-Hi-Y in accordance with the ideals of the YWCA with which it is nationally affiliated.

Marshall's four honor societies give recognition to academically outstanding students. The National Senior and Junior Honor Societies consist of pupils with a 3.2 grade average for their high school careers, with maintainment of a B average mandatory for continued membership. Quill and Scroll honors members of high school publication staffs for their work on the Columbian, Reveille, and Rank and File, and for above-average grade achievement. Requirements for Quill and Scroll are one year on a Marshall literary staff and an academic standing in the top third of their class. Students displaying talent and ability in French are offered membership in GCM's French Honor Society. Students are required to have an overall B average and must be a third year French student with an A or high B mark for their studies in French courses.

Career and Breakfast Clubs

Marshall's career clubs serve as meeting places for students with mutual vocational interests. The clubs engage in field trips, guest speakers, movies, and discussion of the problems and methods in each respective field. For example, the Future Teachers of America took the challenge of helping slow learners from area elementary schools in special Saturday morning sessions. Members of the Future Nurses volunteered to work in Fairfax Hospital to examine new and improved medical hospital techniques. The Future Homemakers worked closely with Marshall's Home Economics Department to study all phases and aspects of home management, from shopping to budgeting.

The Breakfast Club worked diligently all year, serving doughnuts and juice to hungry students and teachers in the morning.

The main combined achievement of G.C.M.'s language clubs was the successful culmination of the second annual International Banquet. This affair becomes more popular every year and leads to a great deal of co-operation from each club in the building of decorations and the presentation of assorted entertainment for the Banquet. With its unusual and diverse selection of foreign cuisine, prepared by members of the French, German, Russian and Spanish clubs, the International Banquet is a success with students and parents alike. Individual club activities include investigation in the respective customs, songs, histories and literature of each country.

Special Student Interests Served

Carol Simonson seems to have stumped the Math Team, especially Capt. Gallaher.

Open to all students intrigued with the aspects of mathematics, algebra, calculus and trigonometry, Marshall's Math Club concerns itself with the logic involved in the science of numbers. Constantly working on theorems and new mathematical concepts, members test the theories that deal with all areas of the subject. Aligned with the Math Club is the G.C.M. Math Team which enters into academic competition with other teams from area high schools in question-answer meets.

The Chess Club at Marshall promotes interest in chess and improvement for individual chess techniques. By direct chess competition, members re-enact strategisms on a representative field of battle.

The Stamp and Coin Club gives enthusiasts of these popular hobbies a chance to meet together to compare and trade collections of old and valuable stamps and coins.

The Bible Club reads, discusses, and applies the parables and passages of the Bible in their relationship to modern life. Using the religious scripture as a code for daily behavior, members of the club meet as a group to interpret the lessons of the prophets and the Messiah.

The school newspaper, Rank and File, faced separate deadlines and the awesome task of covering school and school-oriented activities through-out the year. As one of the main arteries of intra-school communications, Rand and File covered stories ranging from reports of marijuana to statements of the year's presidential candidates. Improved features this year included movie revues and area theatre listings, more statistics on the sports page and a sport spotlight column. In short, Rank and File and its staff did a remarkable job in covering the topical events of the school year.

REVEILLE presents the wide range of diversified student talent in the fields of art and writing. The staff, sponsored by the stalwart Mr. Victor Kryston, waded through the accumulated mass of literary and artistic contributions from Marshall statesmen, selected and edited what they felt was the best the pupils had to offer for the 1968-1969 school year. Published twice a year, the staff heightened student contribution interest by offering prizes for the best prose, humor and poetry. Reveille stands as an output for the creativity of GCM students.

The COLUMBIAN Staff this year contained just the right mixture of humor, seriousness, determination and imagination to reflect the year's events as seen through the eyes of the Marshall student. With a relatively inexperienced staff, we managed to put out an improved and expanded annual. With the complications of changing publishers, this yearbook is the finished product of hours of long work by many individuals. Our special thanks go to Miss Claudia Chaille, our sponsor, for putting up with the antics of the staff members and also for her time in helping us prepare The COLUMBIAN 1969.

Varsity team and Senior Class combine talents to produce a memorable HOMECOMING WEEKEND

"Victory," was the cry of every Statesman at the 1968 Homecoming Game. With a score of 47-7, the fighting Statesmen proved their skill and determination on the gridiron. The Class of '70 also scored with their first place float. A night game, another Marshall first, seemed accepted and enjoyed by all, making the evening an over-all success.

The 1968 Homecoming Dance was only the beginning of a year filled with activities. "The Song of Beowulf," the theme of the dance, filled the gym with medieval fantasies that will long be remembered by Marshall students as well as Marshall alumni. The crowning of a radiant queen highlighted the evening, with Susi Lawrence and her court reigning over the festivities.

"Aphrodite's Garden" Salutes Great Lovers

"Aphrodite's Garden," the annual Sweetheart Dance produced by the class of 1971, enabled the theme of famous lovers of the past to be reflected in decorations and festivities with an elaborate fountain and garden. The evening was topped by the awarding of Senior Superlatives and the presentation of the court which included Freshmen Janet Mitchell and Diane Wrzesinski, Sophomores Lou Michaels and Gail Nalls, Juniors Kate Kendall and Becky Newell and Seniors Linn McDaniel and Sue Troemmler with Queen Cathy Wrzensinski.

ADVERTISEMENTS

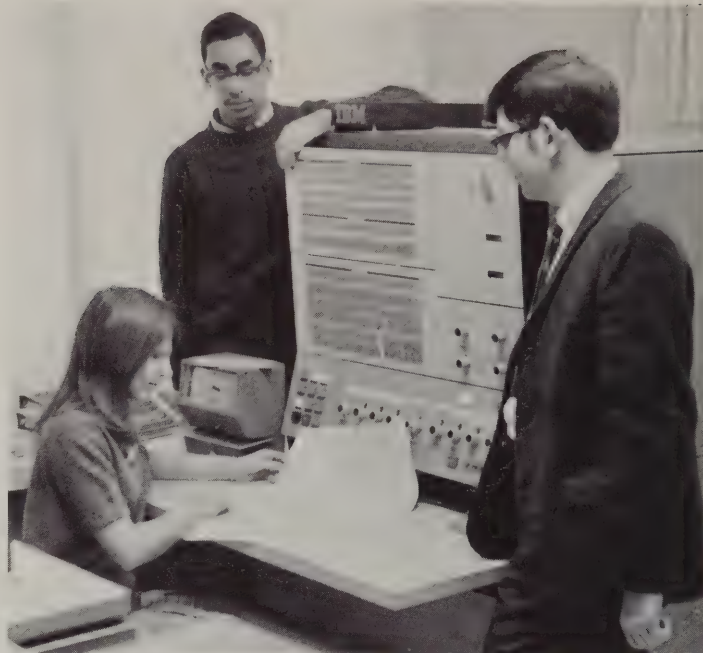

Congratulations!!

You Are Now Entering the Computer Age — and if your education stops now it will pass-you-by . . .

"Our greatest need in the future will be for information middlemen—those who perform the tasks of information collection, processing, analysis, and distribution; who design the various new applications; and who serve as the interpreters of the needs of the physician, the teacher, the lawyer, and the business man."

For tens of thousands of years, man's speed of travel was limited to the speed of a running horse. With the advent of the steam engine, the gasoline engine, the jet engine, and the rocket engine—in one century we have witnessed the man on horseback conquer space.

Perhaps more dramatic has been the development of the computer. There was no computer industry, two decades ago. Today, experts predict that at the present rate of growth, the computer industry will soon surpass the auto industry as the nation's largest.

One of the main facets of the computer industry is

Peopware

It is this area that will determine the future growth of the industry. The present shortage of adequately trained people is already hampering the growth of this industry.
